Demand for dispatch on the rise as income dwindles

By Ben Kleppinger

When Jean Combs started as a 911 dispatcher 19 years ago, she worked with a single panel in front of her and kept all records on paper.

"I was trained on paper and I still use paper," Combs said.

But paper is now just a backup, an unassuming sidekick to the bright battery of computer screens that surround Combs and hold her attention while she works at Bluegrass 911, the call center that serves Lincoln and Garrard counties.

Four screens sit at Combs' L-shaped dispatcher station, while four more line the wall above her and four more sit in front of her co-worker and fellow Waynesburg resident, Vicki Dowell.

Similar clusters line the other walls of the main call center office inside the Billy C. Moss Municipal Center in Lancaster.

Friday afternoon it was pretty quiet by Bluegrass 911 standards — there were only seven active events showing on the main map of Lincoln and Garrard.

Combs said upgrades in 911 technology over the years mean she's now able to get all kinds of vital information instantly and share it with emergency responders in the field.

Previously, she would have to call other official organizations and wait for them to look something up for her before she could

Humana may drop McDowell

Fort Logan would still be in-network

By David Brock
dbrock@schurz.com

One of the state's largest health insurers has told customers it will no longer pay for health care at Ephraim McDowell Regional Medical Center beginning next month, pending negotiations that now stand at an impasse.

Humana started sending out letters last week informing customers that McDowell will be cut from its network of providers Aug. 1. Humana insures state employees, which includes both working and many retired teachers.

In one of the letters from Humana obtained by Schurz Inc., customers are told benefits will not change. The letter lists other hospitals still in the network, which include Fort Logan Hospital in Stanford, James B. Haggin Memorial Hospital in Harrodsburg, St. Joseph Jessamine and the Lexington facilities Central Baptist Hospital, St. Joseph Hospital and University of Kentucky Chandler

Burn bans lifted

Lincoln County and the cities of Hustonville and Stanford have lifted burn bans put in place while Lincoln County underwent an extended drought.

Lincoln County and Hustonville have also lifted fireworks bans that were in place. Stanford Mayor Bill Miracle said his city's fireworks ban will be lifted once city council members can vote to do away with it.

The county-wide burn and fireworks bans were issued July 2; Hustonville and Stanford put their bans in place in late June.

Sidewalk art event in Stanford attracts all ages

More than a dozen people visited downtown Stanford July 12 to make their own marks on the sidewalk outside the Buzz Walker Building. The special event, "Chalk It Up," was organized by the Lincoln County Chamber of Commerce and Heart of Kentucky United Way. All kinds of people, from little kids to senior citizens, drew positive messages and colorful graphics along a stretch of sidewalk about one block long. The event is planned to be an annual occurrence. At top, Catrina Ernst, 4, and Ethan Padgett, 10, work on a drawing together. At right, Patty Garwood, left, writes a message in blue while Gretchen Garwood, 2, decides where to draw next. Below, a fish and mermaid-like creature accompany a message, "the sun shines on Stanford."

KINGS MOUNTAIN — A Lincoln County woman died Tuesday after wrecking into a concrete culvert along Ky. 501 in the Kings Mountain community.

Sheriff Curt Folger said

Bertha Vanhook, 86, was traveling down Ky. 501 Tuesday morning in her 1991 Buick when she left the right side of the road, traveling down a ditch before striking the culvert.

"Right now it's looking like there was a medical condition that caused her to leave the highway," Folger said. "There was no skid marks. She traveled approximately 300 feet down a ditch line and there was no indications that she tried to brake."

Fort Logan High lands $135K to improve students' employability

By Ben Kleppinger
ben@theinteriorjournal.com

STANFORD — Up to 40 Fort Logan High School students will have new chances to boost their employability and job experience, thanks to a $135,000 grant from the Bluegrass Workforce Investment Board.

Fort Logan Principal Scott Montgomery said the grant he applied for, which was awarded June 20, is aimed at helping low-income students improve their numeracy, literacy and job skills.

"The money is not earmarked as much as a lot of grants are, so they do give you some leeway there so you can help it to fit your program," Montgomery said.

The grant provides funding for up to 40 students who meet income eligibility requirements and are between the ages of 16 and 18.

Montgomery said the grant pays for up to 20 of those students to get work experience.

Local employers can hire the students and the

Under First Amendment, religious freedom favors none, protects all

Louisiana State Rep. Valarie Hodges used to be a big fan of school vouchers. “I liked the idea,” she explained, “of giving parents the option of sending their children to a public school or a Christian school.”

Then last month Hodges got a First Amendment reality check when she discovered that Christian schools wouldn’t be the only religious schools getting tax dollars. “Unfortunately, it [vouchers] will not be limited to the Founders’ religion,” she said. “We need to ensure that it does not open the door to fund radical Islam schools. There are a thousand Muslim schools that have sprung up recently. I do not support using public funds for teaching Islam anywhere here in Louisiana.”

Although Gov. Bobby Jindal’s voucher plan passed last month without her support, Hodges vowed to keep looking for alternative ways to “support funding for teaching the fundamentals of America’s Founding Fathers’ religion, which is Christianity, in public schools or private schools.”

Beyond the fact that some of the Founders were not Christian, Rep. Hodges appears confused — to put it mildly — about the implications of the First Amendment’s guarantee of religious freedom for all, including American Muslims.

She is not alone. Last week, state Sen. Kevin Grantham of Colorado worried out loud about the proliferation of mosques in America. Fresh from hearing an anti-mosque speech by Dutch parliamentarian Geert Wilders (outspoken opponent of all things Islamic),

Grantham said that “mosques are not churches like we would think of churches.”

In an apparent attempt to remove mosques from the First Amendment protection afforded Christian churches, Grantham claimed that Muslims “think of mosques as a foothold into a society, as a foothold into a community, more in the cultural and in the nationalistic sense. Our churches – we don’t feel that way, they’re places of worship, and mosques are simply not that.”

Beyond the fact that mosques are indeed places of worship, Sen. Grantham also appears confused about the meaning of religious freedom in America.

Hodges and Grantham speak for those Americans of the majority faith who are anxious about the changing religious landscape of America – and what it means for the nation’s future. It’s the same anxiety that fuels campaigns to post the Ten Commandments on schoolhouse walls or to pray the Lord’s Prayer at city council meetings. What Hodges calls “the Founders’ religion” is still viewed by many Christians as America’s official faith.

Attempts to favor one faith — historically Protestant Christianity — over others in the public square are doomed to fail in the new religious America of the 21st century. But that won’t stop many in the majority from trying.

From the 17th century Puritan determination to enforce religious conformity in Massachusetts Bay Colony to the 19th century campaign to prevent the spread of Roman Catholicism, those in the majority have often feared, opposed and sometimes persecuted the “strangers in the midst of the saints,” as the Puritans might put it.

Now, once again, changing demographics are pushing Americans, sometimes kicking and screaming, toward full religious freedom. Lest we forget, the emergence of dissenting religious groups such as Baptists and Presbyterians in the Colonial period eventually provided the ground troops that won the battle for disestablishment of the Anglican Church in Virginia in 1786. And waves of immigration in the 19th and early 20th centuries gave power in numbers to Roman Catholics, Jews and others seeking an equal place at the American table.

Today, the last vestiges of Protestant domination are disappearing as America moves rapidly toward a minority-majority country in both religion and race. Demographers tell us that soon the number of Americans identifying as “Protestant” (51% in 2004) will fall below 50% of the population for the first time in our history.

This is bad news for those who cling to their version of a “Christian America” where one faith (theirs) receives school vouchers, zoning permits and other benefits and protections, while other faiths are barely tolerated to be here.

But it’s great news for religious freedom.

James Madison hit the mark when he argued that “freedom arises from the multiplicity of sects, which pervades America and which is the best and only security for religious liberty in any society. For where there is such a variety of sects, there cannot be a majority of any one sect to oppress and persecute the rest.”

The Chamber will be using the proceeds from the race for scholarships for LCHS students.

Special thanks to the City for the use of the parking garage, the Stanford police, and the volunteers that helped!

Everyone should use the library

Dear editor,
I encourage all Lincoln Countians to take advantage of the services offered at our library. The library, now housed in a well-designed modern structure, is suited to the needs of today's patrons. The services offered by the library have evolved to include significant computing resources, audio books, ebooks, online genealogy resources, and a video collection in addition to their outstanding book and periodicals collection. Probably the most important resource of the library is the knowledgeable and helpful staff. I first started using the library when Mrs. Betsey Elliott was director. The same great service Lincoln County had come to expect under her leadership has been continued under Ms. Kay Peppard, Mrs. Jamie Mingo, and new director Amanda Gearhart.

I can't say enough about the children's programs offered. When my own children were in grade school, they attended the children's summer reading programs. Having come full circle, I take my grandson to the weekly reading programs that are now offered year round thanks to the library board and the children's librarian, Ms. Robin Comorat. Ms. Comorat's experience in working with children in Montessori schools and the Lincoln County School system coupled with her coursework in Early Childhood Development are an asset to the library and the county. Her lessons are thoughtfully prepared and include thematic activities that target the skill sets needed for each age group. She is a favorite of the children, but she also relates well to the adults in the library. I look forward to each of my grandchildren being led through books and social skills by Ms. Robin. Sincerely,

Lynn McFalls

An encouraging word

A directive for daily life

By Howard Coop

At the beginning of adulthood, my friend, I was told, became a businessman in the small community in which he lived. He became a part of a growing business his father had established, and after his father's death, he operated that successful business for many years. Years later when I got to know him, time had made that business outdated, and he had closed it, but he had developed another successful business and was still operating it. For over fifty years, he had been a leader in the business community of that small town and had exerted a lot of influence on its development and the changes that had been thrust upon it. Too, throughout his adult life, he had been a devoted member of a church in the community, and when I got to know him, he was the popular teacher of an adult Sunday school class in that church. Immediately, after I met him, he became a true and trusted friend, and he remained my friend as long as he lived.

Tall and erect and displaying a pleasant disposition, my friend could be seen almost every day on the streets of the little town in which he lived, for he walked to the post office or the bank, or wherever he needed to go. Whenever he met a lady, he always courteously tipped his hat, and with a kind and soft-spoken voice, he graciously greeted everyone he met. In the truest sense of the word, he was a gentleman. Because of the way he conducted himself and the way he dealt with people every day, he was respected and admired by everyone in that community.

When I think of my friend and the genteel way he dealt with everyone he met in everyday life, I think of something else: Almost two thousand years ago, we were given a powerful directive for daily living that can make a difference in life. It says, "Be kind and compassionate to one another" and develop a willingness to forgive when forgiveness is necessary.

Waynesburg Family Worship Center news

By Aline Matlock

Waynesburg Family Worship Center has been blessed for the past year when our pastor Steve Gates and his wife, Judy, came to be with us.

The church is located on Hwy. 27 close to Waynesburg. Come and worship with us. Morning worship starts at 10:30 a.m. on Sunday mornings and Bible study is at 7 p.m. on Wednesday evenings.

Sunday morning began with prayer time. Bring your prayer requests and be a part of this ministry in the church. The morning worship was followed by our first of the month dinner for everyone.

The church should be very important to all of us. It is not only a place to worship the Lord, but it is a place to gather together and strengthen one another.

As I wrote this article, I thought about the church. It is a place to hear the Word of God preached seeking the will of God for our lives each time we gather and a place to find strength and encouragement. A place where we enter with discouragement, broken down with trials, with troubled hearts and minds and during the service, a word is preached or spoken that assures us that things are going to get better. It is a haven of rest, a place to find peace for our soul.

It is an empty building without us and we are the people God has placed there to occupy until he comes. This is a place to find strength for each day. It is a lighthouse on a hill drawing people in to worship Him, a place we are safe from the storm, as ships on the sea are directed by the lighthouse, so is God's word directing us by our pastor and others to stay close to the light which is the Lord.

Our souls are fed by the Word. It encourages us, lifts us up, directs our paths and comforts us. The church is a place where God meets His children, a place where burdens are laid at the altar leaving them in God's hands.

Does the church need me or do I need the church? The answer is yes to both questions, especially today in times like these. We definitely need the church.

There will be a gospel concert on Sunday, July 22 at 10:30 a.m. with Brothers Forever as the guest singers. The group was formed in 2004 as a Southern gospel quartet, and they transitioned into the trio you hear today under the leadership of founding member Curtis Hagy. He is joined by vocalists Gary Ballew and Chris Higginbottom. Their latest release is "Sheltered". If you need more information or need directions, call the church at (606) 365-2257 or Pastor Steve Gates at (812) 639-7405.

Highland Methodist Church news

The congregation at the Highland United Methodist Church on Sunday, July 15, was showered with natural blessings; as well as, spiritual blessings.

One member, Joann Davis, gave God many thanks for the wonderful showers of much needed rain. The rain would intermittently stop from time to time, long enough to allow a member to enter the sanctuary, and then would begin to rain once again.

Thanks and blessings were given for the returning home of many seriously ill friends and relatives.

Virginia Reed, Lyndell Sims, Lisa Johnson and Peter Langford's brother in Spain have all returned to their homes.

Eunice Wood related that her daughter, Rene's, cast had been removed, and she is now wearing a boot restraint on her foot.

Ron Hunkins thanks specific members and others in the congregation for showing compassion and caring during their time of bereavement and sorrow over the loss of Ellen's mother, Bertha Vanhook, who was tragically killed in an automobile accident. Mrs. Vanhook was a fine, Christian lady.

Ron will also be taking radiation treatments for his health conditions.

We learned Sunday morning that Helen Croft, Tennessee, had died, and she was to be buried at the Highland Methodist Church Cemetery, Wednesday, July 18, at 1:30 p.m. Helen was the daughter of the late Mr. Jim (James) and Mayme Young. She is a half-sister to Beverly, Eunice, Phyllis, Gary and Faye, remaining Young siblings.

Also, Faye Young Reed is scheduled to have eye surgery this week.

During Sunday school, our birthday person was Tyler McGuffey.

Highland's church sermon was preached or presented by the congregation. Most all of the congregation shared by reading, singing or writing poetry to a favorite song that represented a portion of their life and/or faith. Each one gave heartfelt, inspirational remarks or gave testimonies concerning these hymnal choices.

Susie and Peter Langford shared copies of the words to, "You Are the Shepherd", and the congregation sang along with a CD of a child from Africa singing this song.

Jo Ann Elliott wrote the following poem about her past experiences, and how these experiences related to certain hymns.

My Special Song

While floors were being swept, and beds were being made, My mom would sing about a city where the roses never fade.

Sometimes I can still hear her singing. I could listen all day long; So, I guess I could say that's my special song.

When my son went to church, everyone knew what he would say. "Preacher, are we going to sing, 'God Is So Good', today."

They sang that at his funeral. This song is special; you see. He loved, "God Is So Good, He's So Good to Me."

"In the Sweet By and By," puts a smile on some people's face. Then I see some tears, when we sing, "Amazing Grace."

Different songs have a connection in my church family.

That's what makes these song so special to you and me.

Scripture from Ephesians 6:10-18 was read by Peter Langford.

Next Sunday there will be choir practice for working on songs for next Sunday's fifth Sunday service, July 29.

Come and join us in services at 10 and 11 a.m. at the Highland United Methodist Church. One never knows what blessings or what special happenings may be shared. Most every Sunday we share unplanned refreshments and/or light meals after worship. Most every Sunday it's a surprise as to what will be there!

News from Ottenheim area

By Dorothea Schlappi

First of all, we thank God for the wonderful rain we had this past week. Eunice Schlappi spent last week in Alabama on business and reported rain there also. I guess most of the states received the very welcome rains. The crops here were really hurting from lack of rain.

Susanne and Jerry Zwahlen held a surprise birthday party recently for his mother, Edith Zwahlen's 80th birthday. It was a special occasion as many family members and friends attended. May you have many more happy birthdays Edith.

Here is a hint that I use to save on the electric bill. Instead of using my big oven I use my toaster oven to bake a casserole, cookies and etc. I only use my bigger oven when I can bake more at one time and it doesn't heat up the kitchen as much.

Congratulations to Deanna Coers and William D. Carter on being united in marriage on the 7th of July. We wish them a long, happy life together. Deanna is the daughter of Selene and Mike Coers.

True friendship is seen through the heart not through the eyes.

News from Pleasant View Baptist Church

By Scena Ann Petrey
A flashlight has no use or benefit without the battery to power it. Like the flashlight, we Christians have no power without the Holy Spirit. Our church was totally empowered Sunday, July 15 for both morning and evening services.

For the second Sunday in a row, church services began with a baptism; that of Mayci Godbey, daughter of Tim and Dayna Godbey. Her great uncle Mike Bastin baptized her. Wouldn't it be awesome if we could do this for the next 50 weeks?

Sunday morning our church commissioned Zach and Ashley Jacobs and Aaron and Kelly Hogue. Zach and Ashley are in training in Missouri for mission work with the unreached tribes. Aaron and Kelly are in full-time mission work with the Fellowship of Christian Athletes and work out of Lexington. Both couples spoke about what they are doing and commended Pleasant View for the training and support they have already received and will continue to receive. Following this, the entire church formed a circle around the sanctuary with the two couples in the middle for prayer. Very moving!!

Kenny Jacobs sang a special that went along with the sending of people out to work for God. "Whom shall I send? Here I am, Lord. I have heard You calling in the night; I will go, Lord, if You lead me" were beautiful, meaningful words in the song.

Bro. Kyle's message was "Fishers of Men: Moving Beyond Mission Mindedness" and was taken from Matthew 4:18-22. "How does God call us to mission action?" asked Bro. Kyle.

He answered this by giving us the three points of his message. God calls us out of our comfortable lifestyle; He calls us to go where the people are; and He calls us to care about the spiritual condition of others. He pointed out that all Christians are called to be workers for Christ - some are called to be missionaries around the world and some are called to do mission work in their neighborhoods.

Sunday evening services featured Logan Godbey playing a special on the piano.

Bro. Jamie brought the evening message entitled "Singing in the Rain" from Mark 4:35-41. Following a long day, Jesus got in a boat with His disciples and fell asleep. During a storm, His disciples asked Him, "Don't you care that we could die?"

Oftentimes, during a "storm" in our lives we may ask the same questions, "Don't you care?" Bro. Jamie said we must not focus on the bad times in our lives, but rather focus on Jesus. They (storms) come in our lives to help us grow, and they have a purpose in our lives.

We extend Christian sympathy and prayers to the following: Rose Cook, Peggy Fillingim's mother, passed away last week and to Cherie Martin whose aunt passed away last week in California. We also extend sympathy to the family of James Mullins who passed way Sunday. He is a cousin to Hobert Denny and Willie Petrey.

Our welcome team will have a planning meeting on Sunday, July 29 at 6 p.m.

We will have the pews and carpet shampooed in the sanctuary and the nurseries in the basement, Monday, July 23. We ask that you please not be on this area anytime Monday, July 23 and Tuesday, July 24. Thank you!

The food pantry is in need of several items. Check the bulletin or call the church.

We are once again planning the Back-to-School free yard sale for Saturday, Aug. 4. Contact Jennie McWhorter for more information.

On Saturday, Aug. 24, the Sunday school teachers and leaders will have a mini-retreat from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the Lincoln County Baptist associational building.

Everyone is invited to a Sunday school breakfast Sunday, Aug. 26 at 9 a.m. The breakfast will be served by the deacons to promote Sunday school and show appreciation toward Sunday school teachers. There will be no early service for this special fellowship.

The WMU is sponsoring a summer Mission project - "Giving a Second Chance." They are collecting several items that were listed on the bulletin Sunday. These items must be at church by July 29, and containers are by the water fountain.

This year our church will be making a new directory. Sign up on the upstairs bulletin board to have your picture taken. The sessions are from Sept. 5-8 with a make-up date to follow.

Dates to remember: July 22-25 Crossing's Kids Camp; July 24-30 Youth KHO Camp; Aug. 4 - Back-to-School free yard sale; Aug. 8 - school starts; Aug. 25 - Sunday school leaders mini-retreat; Aug. 26 - Sunday school breakfast; Sept. 2- Sunday school Promotion Sunday; Sept. 5-8 - Pictorial directory dates.

Thought for the week: "The Bible is meant to be BREAD for daily use, not cake for special occasions."

Stamper, Whitis win Tiny Tots titles at fair

By Nancy Leedy

The Lincoln County Fair crowned its tiniest of royals on the final night of pageants with Kerrington Stamper and O'Neil Whitis deemed by the judges as the top candidates. Stamper and Whitis were chosen out of a field of 15 boys and girls, ages three and four years, who took the stage of the Teddy Gilbert Pageant Pavilion for the annual Lincoln County Fair contest.

The Tiny Tots competition is divided into two different divisions with a winner chosen for the boys and the girls.

Stamper is the daughter of Aaron and Jennifer Stamper, and Whitis is the son of Eddy and April Whitis.

Tiny Tots contestants were judged in interview and onstage appearance and poise. Stamper and Whitis, who were interviewed by mistress of ceremonies Amanda Foster, matched the Patriotic theme of the pageant with Kerrington donning a light blue summer dress adorned with blue/white polka dot and red/white striped ribbons and O'Neil decked out in a red, white and blue polo shirt and white shorts

The newest Tiny Tots winners each received a $25 cash award and a sash. Stamper also received a crown and Whitis received a medallion. The 2011 Tiny Tots winners Elly Ann Jones and Carson Greer presented Stamper and Whitis with their prizes.

There was a tie for first runner-up in both the girls division and the boys division. Haleigh Farris and Tori Lynn Brown were both named first runner-up for the girls while Logan Allen and Brody Staton shared first runner-up honors for the boys.

Farris is the daughter of Chad and Amanda Farris and Brown is the daughter of Eric and Natasha Brown. Allen is the son of Phillip and Jessica Allen and Staton is the son of Ginny Staton and Toby Kirby. Assisting each of the Tiny Tots contestants on stage during the competition was 2012 Miss Lincoln County Barbara Harris.

Stanford Nazarene Church news

By Buford Edwards II

Sunday morning, Stanford Church of the Nazarene was blessed by the wonderful worship service. We enjoyed a video with Vacation Bible School highlights and also challenged by the Word of God as Bro. Buford brought the message on the subject of "Philip the Calculator" from John 6. On Sunday night we gathered back with a special time of singing and testimony offered by the congregation with the message from Genesis 13, "Surveying the Promised Land."

Come out Wednesday night for Christian Education Night. Our kids meet weekly and our adult class dubbed, "The Book" club is currently working through the book of Revelation. Our reading continues in Rev. 18. Read up and join us for Bible study as we discuss "Babylon's End" as well as the verse of the week: Rev. 18:4 (KJV) And I heard another voice from heaven, saying, Come out of her, my people, that ye be not partakers of her sins, and that ye receive not of her plagues.

Thought for the week: God has called all His people to come out and be separate from the world and "not be partakers of her sins."

We want to thank everyone who brought their kids out for Vacation Bible School and also all those who helped out! We had a wonderful Bible School and the cookout was a blast!

The ladies meet the first Tuesday of every month at 6 p.m. in the fellowship hall. Their next regular meeting will be Aug. 7.

The Jail Ministry meets every Sunday at 2:30 p.m. and the Nursing Home Ministry the first Tuesday of each month at 2 p.m. For more information, or to learn how to get involved, contact the church and leave a message.

The Men's Group meets every other month on the second Monday of the month. The next meeting is Aug. 13 at 7 p.m. Plan to come to this meeting. We will be planning an upcoming rifle shoot and cookout tentative for Sept. 1.

Work continues on Brianna's Angel House located across the street from the Community Outreach Center on Cutoff Street in Stanford. For more details and to learn how you can contribute to this ministry, contact the church at (606) 365-1260.

The church has an active food assistance program. If you know of anyone or have a need yourself, leave a message at the church.

Service times: Sunday school starts at 10 a.m., Sunday morning worship begins at 11 a.m., Sunday evening services at 6 p.m., and Christian Education Night is every Wednesday beginning at 7 p.m.

News from Fairview Baptist Church

By Shelby Lakes

On Sunday, Bro. Johnny Baker announced that the El Salvador mission team has 200 students in Vacation Bible School from a school of 300, and they are doing plumbing and electrical work.

Bro. Johnny's message was about "looking toward the cross." He said he wants the image of the cross to be impressed in our minds. The cross was not a symbol of Christianity until the second century, Bro. Johnny said, but today it is everywhere. It was not intended to be a trinket.

The resurrection of Christ showed he was who he said he was. Everything God wants us to know about him comes together at the cross. But, "What is he doing there? Bro. Johnny asked.

Bro. Johnny gave three things Christ was doing on the cross: substituting himself for us; suffering for us; and satisfying his father's wrath.

When Pilate released Barabbas (a criminal) at the request of the Jews, it was symbolic that he took the place of a sinner, like he has taken the place of all of us that will be saved. "Behind Barabbas stands every other sinner that lives," Bro. Johnny said.

Jesus suffered for us not only physically, but also in that his death was a scandal, which Bro. Johnny defined as something that offends moral feelings and leads to disgrace. Many still hate him today, Bro. Johnny said, and if you are saved and live for Jesus, they will hate you, too.

Jesus satisfied his father's wrath for us. The wrath of God was satisfied like a bull's eye on Jesus, Bro. Johnny said. For when Jesus died the earth shook and rocks came apart, and at the moment Jesus died, the veil of the temple was torn, opening the way to God for all of us.

On the cross, God did something about all sin, Bro. Johnny said, and once you are forgiven of them, they are not your problems any more. (End of sermon summary)

Celebrating birthdays were Liz Manning, Carol Shelton, Doris Crouch, Walker Wood, Barbara Rice and Sheila Reed.

News from New Covenant Church

By Bethany Rowland

Both services on Sunday, July 15 at New Covenant were other worldly. Both were filled with such a sweet spirit from God that cannot be described or imitated.

Sunday morning we had the wonderful blessing of getting to see a man come to the Lord after many long years of sin and discontent. He came up from the altar smiling and crying tears of joy. It was one of the most heartfelt and touching prayers of a sinner I have seen in a very long time.

Bro. Mike Shepherd gave an awesome testimony on keeping your eyes on Jesus, using the example of Peter walking on the water and Pastor, Bro. Joel Rowland, preached an outstanding message on "The Paradigm shift". With the beginning of his preaching, he had Bro. Matt pass out a picture of the duck and everyone could plainly see that it was a duck. He then began to describe the paradigm shift, which is a scientific term which means that you still have all of the same facts, you just see it differently. Before the explorers traveled the Earth, they believed it to be flat. Once traveled, they realized that it was actually round. It was still the same Earth, they just saw it differently.

We have to be ready at all times to allow this to happen in our lives by divine intervention. We may have read the Bible our whole lives and believed it to mean one thing, or have simply been taught something and always believed it to be true. But when God says "wait, try looking at it this way", we need to stop and listen. We still have the same Bible, we still have the same facts, but we can look at it a completely different way. We can realize that our picture of a duck, when turned a quarter turn to the right, was in fact...A rabbit.

To hear this wonderful message and many others visit our website at Newcovenantholiness.webs.com and/or also on Facebook, <http://www.facebook.com/newcovenantchurchtrinitarian>.

Join us on Sunday mornings at 11 a.m., Sunday evenings at 6 p.m. and Wednesday at 7 p.m. Everyone is welcome for praise and worship services and for our Trinitarian outreach programs. You can find all outreach programs and other upcoming events on our website along with many links and Bible studies.

LITTLE MISS winner Emmie Releford flashes a big smile for the crowd and Little Mister winner Jackson Sims pumps his fist up in celebration after the announcement of their names as the 2012 Lincoln County Fair titleholders.

Releford, Sims reign as Little Miss, Mister

By Nancy Leedy

Emmie Releford and Jackson Sims tried their best to control their excitement but it was just too much to contain after they heard their names called as the winners of the 2012 Little Miss and Mister titles.

Releford beamed from ear-to-ear, giggling as she stepped forward to receive her crown while Sims exhibited a little more excitement with a double fist pump after the announcement at the Lincoln County Fair Teddy Gilbert Pageant Pavilion.

Releford, dressed in a navy blue summer jumper adorned with a bright red ribbon, and Sims, wearing a red polo shirt and white shorts, smiled and waved proudly as they accepted their Little Miss and Mister titles from last year's winners Bae-Bae Smith and Jackson Mason Jones.

While Releford relished in the moment of winning the Little Miss Title, Sims' mother, Debbie Sims, said her son's extra show of emotion was more about what the title meant for him – a day off from school to go to the Kentucky State Fair.

Releford, the daughter of Jamie and Tami Releford of Stanford, and Sims, the son of Junior Sims and Debbie Sims of Hustonville, were selected by the judges out of a field of eight couples to win the titles, and the opportunity to represent Lincoln County in the Kentucky State Fair Little Miss and Mister Contest in Louisville in August.

They each received a trophy, sash and a $25 cash award, as well as, a crown for Releford and a medallion for Sims.

The first runner-up couple in the Little Miss and Mister contest was Kennedy Grace Stamper, the daughter of Aaron and Jennifer Stamper of Stanford, and Tate Curlis, the son of Brandon and Sandra Curlis of Stanford.

News from Kings Mountain

By Violet Bell/Beverly Murphy

We are all thankful for the much needed rain and the drop in the high temperatures this past week. As hot and dry as we have had it, there are other parts of the country where it has been hotter and dryer and they still are. Our prayers go out to these people.

Judy Stull and her granddaughter Shelby Stull traveled to Georgetown to spend the weekend with Judy's daughter Jennifer Stull. They enjoyed their time together by shopping and eating out.

The Pleasant Point Baptist Church Vacation Bible School had a very successful week. They averaged 45 children in attendance each night and everyone enjoyed the week.

Last Tuesday, Bertha Vanhook was traveling West on Hwy. 501 and had an accident. She was taken to the hospital by the rescue squad and later passed from this life. I did not know her, but I did know some of her children and our condolences go out to the family. There was no other vehicle involved.

Our Kings Mountain group met at Ruckel's Restaurant in Eubank for our monthly get together last Tuesday. Evelyn Terry and Lorraine McKinney joined us this time and we had a very enjoyable time talking and visiting.

Mr. Lyndell Sims had to undergo emergency open heart surgery recently, but is now at home and seems to be doing well.

Gentry and Chastin Young, along with their mother Sissy Young and other members of their church group from Danville, traveled to Porto Rico recently on a mission trip. The young people attended church meetings each morning and played baseball games each afternoon. They enjoyed their trip very much.

grant will pay the students' wages at a rate of $7.50 per hour for up to 20 hours a week and for a maximum of five weeks.

"It's a win-win situation to me," Montgomery said. "Kids are gaining valuable experience and employers can also receive some benefit from that as well."

Montgomery said he's meeting with local jobs leaders like members of the industrial board and the chamber of commerce in order to set up partnerships to provide jobs for the eligible students.

Beyond paying students' work wages, Montgomery said he plans to invest in technology and curriculum, including a career-development program, that will help Fort Logan students find jobs or move on to college after they graduate.

In addition, students in the program will visit the Bluegrass Workforce Investment Board to practice interviewing skills and go through mock interviews.

Montgomery told the Lincoln County Board of Education the money can be spent on a wide variety of expenses including field trips.

"We'll have the opportunity to take these kids to places they've never been," he said. "I couldn't be more excited."

Montgomery said Fort

Logan is one of ten organizations to receive grants from the Workforce Investment Board this year and one of only two public schools to ever receive this type of funding, the other being a high school in Estill County.

Montgomery is seeking out advice from a leader at the other public school, which has been involved with the grant program for about 12 years, in order to get her perspective on the best ways to use the grant funding.

"I'm going to be using her as a resource," he said. "I don't want to reinvent the wheel and I don't want to think I've got a great idea that she's already tried."

The grant can be renewed for up to three years after the initial year if Fort Logan students who use the program are successful enough in finding jobs or going to college.

"If we can reach our goals, which we'll be working hard to do, it could bring well over half a million dollars into the county," Montgomery said.

In order to qualify for renewal, 60 percent of students must graduate and 65 percent must find employment or begin post-secondary education.

Montgomery said Fort Logan currently has an 87-percent success rate for its students going to college or a technical school, finding a job or serving in the military, so the school is already in a good position to meet the requirements for grant renewal.

Montgomery said he's excited about the potential to increase his students' employment chances, especially in such a bad economy.

"Anything we can do to get kids more employable this day and time I think is a must. It's just tough out there right now for a young person trying to get started," he said. "Even if you've got a college education, it's hard out there right now. So if we can provide them with some skills that the workforce is needing, then we're just all that much better off."

Man allegedly leads police on chase from Danville to Stanford

Staff Report

STANFORD — A 19-year-old Danville man was charged with multiple felony and misdemeanor crimes after leading Boyle County Deputy Sheriffs on a high-speed chase in the early morning hours of July 12, police said.

Aaron A. Oiler, 19, of McKinney Avenue in Danville, allegedly was recklessly driving his motorcycle at 3 a.m. near the Hampton Inn on the U.S. 150 bypass, police said.

Two Boyle County

deputies tried to pull him over, but he allegedly fled at a high rate of speed while driving toward the deputies.

Oiler was apprehended in Stanford with the help of Stanford police officers and a Lincoln County deputy. Officials transported him to Boyle County Detention Center.

Oiler is charged with first-degree fleeing or evading police, first-degree wanton endangerment, speeding 120 miles per hour in a 55 zone, careless driving, driving with a suspended license and several other traffic offenses.

HUMANA

From A1

Medical Center.

Some people with certain medical conditions would be able to continue using McDowell with the same level of reimbursement for a specified amount of time if they fill out a form included with the mailing.

On Sunday, Ephraim McDowell Health began running a full-page advertisement in the Advocate-Messenger in the form of an open letter signed by President and Chief Executive Officer Vicki Darnell. In the advertisement, Darnell says Humana notified the hospital the company intends to reduce payments by 23 percent.

"The ramifications of this decision would be serious for Ephraim McDowell Health and also the thousands of Humana members who depend on us for their health care," the advertisement states. "You may have to select a new physician. You will have to travel for your health care resulting in more time off work or out of school. Worst of all, we fear some will not see a physician due to the inconvenience created by Humana's decision."

Humana spokesman Marvin Hill responded to an interview request from The Advocate-Messenger with the following statement via email:

"We have attempted to negotiate a fair and market-competitive contract with Ephraim McDowell Regional Medical Center, and we are committed and hopeful that we can come to acceptable terms prior to Aug. 1."

Crystal Staley with the Kentucky Personnel Cabinet said the cabinet's Department of Employee Insurance contracts with Humana to provide a network of medical providers and process claims for the Kentucky Employee Health Plan.

However, Staley said the department doesn't participate in contracting with or credentialing of the medical network and referred questions about how the negotiations could impact state workers to Hill.

If the two sides do not reach an agreement, Darnell said the changes would only impact services provided by the Danville hospital and its ambulatory surgery center. Fort Logan and other facilities operated by Ephraim McDowell Health, such as clinics, would not be affected Aug. 1.

Those with Humana insurance could not receive treatment at the hospital, and Darnell said the out-of-network costs would be drastically higher.

Paul Smiley, president of the Boyle County Retired Teachers Association, said he has fielded numerous calls from a constituency that includes nearly 400 members. Most of the communication has been from those worried about having to leave the county to get care.

Smiley has been in frequent contact with the Kentucky Retired Teachers Association and has been assured the changes Aug. 1 will not include retired teachers over 65 who are part of the Kentucky Teacher Retirement System's Medicare Eligible Health Plan. However, retirees under 65 and all those currently employed in local school systems would have to go elsewhere.

"We aren't state employees, we're retired folks," said Smiley, who spent nearly 30 years as an educator and director of athletics at Kentucky School for the Deaf. "If this comes to pass, it wouldn't just affect us, though, it would affect a lot of private individuals and private businesses."

Smiley remains hopeful Humana and the hospital will be able to continue their relationship.

Darnell said the hospital provided about $36 million in health care that was never paid for over the last two years and is being asked to provide even more for significantly less from both private insurance and programs such as Medicare. She believes Humana is also failing to recognize the already large amount of uncompensated care, as well as the importance of the human factors involved.

"We are not a big city, and people have long-standing relationships with their physicians," Darnell said. "The power and the strength of those relationships is huge for the patients as well as the physicians. I really feel Humana is discounting that."

Although she said the hospital is in a strong financial situation, Darnell acknowledged losing the business from Humana customers would be a significant financial blow.

According to Bill Snapp, McDowell's chief financial officer, there are about 9,200 Humana customers in the area who have access to the hospital. Humana accounts for about 10.5 percent of the hospital's revenue. Snapp said some changes to the contract with Humana likely are warranted to bring the agreement in line with the current market, but decreasing payments in the amount Humana wants is too much too fast. He declined to divulge the exact level Humana currently reimburses for care but said each percentage-point decrease represents about $180,000 in lost revenue. "We recognize we will have to come down some to meet them, but to expect us to go to 23 percent in one or two years would hurt the hospital and have a ripple effect in the entire community," Snapp said, noting McDowell Health's $86 million in cost for more than 1,500 employees.

While Snapp said the two sides have gotten closer to a 17 percent reduction during their ongoing negotiations, that amount still would represent more than a $3 million annual loss.

FATAL

Coroner John McCarty said after a witness called 911 to report the crash, Vanhook was transported by Waynesburg EMS to Ephraim McDowell Regional Medical Center in Danville.

From there, she was airlifted to the University of Kentucky Chandler Medical Center in Lexington. She died in the operating room before doctors could operate, McCarty said.

Vanhook was pronounced dead at 3:23 p.m. as a result of multiple blunt force trauma, McCarty said.

Folger said indications at the scene suggest Vanhook was wearing a seatbelt.

radio it back to responders. Now she uses one of the many databases sitting ready at her fingertips and the info pops up.

Combs said she has no doubt new 911 technology makes Lincoln and Garrard counties safer.

But that technology is not cheap — as Bluegrass 911's current computer systems approach the end of their lifespans, board members are considering the center's next technology upgrade, expected to cost at least $300,000.

Bluegrass 911 Director Russ Clark said the demand for better and better 911 service is on the rise and he doesn't expect that demand to slow down any time soon.

No one wants to hear that there was technology available that could have saved their loved one's life, but the 911 center couldn't afford it, he said.

"I think it's going to be a continuing battle because technology and equipment (have) to be replaced and people (want) more service," he said. "There's more going on; there's more travel. More is happening."

It is this demand for 911 service combined with an ongoing decline in the number of people who pay for landline telephones that led officials in Lincoln and Garrard counties to begin pursuing a change in how Bluegrass 911 is funded.

Pending final approval

from Lincoln County Fiscal Court, the counties are set to do away with a $3 monthly fee currently charged to all landline telephones and implement a new $2.50 monthly fee on all water meters, which will become Bluegrass 911's new main source of income.

It's a change necessitated by the continually shrinking market for landline telephones, Clark said.

Reversing the trend

Clark said every year, Bluegrass 911 sees a decline of about 6 percent in the number of landlines — and consequently, 911 funding from landlines.

That 6-percent trend has been going for about three years, he added.

In June alone, AT&T told Bluegrass 911 it lost around 1,200 landlines — a startling jump from the average decline over the past year of about 41 AT&T lines per month.

Clark said the loss was so unbelievable, he's called AT&T to make sure it wasn't an error, but has yet to hear back.

Across all telephone carriers in Lincoln and Garrard counties, landline use shrunk by nearly 1,800 lines in the past year, including the recent 1,200-line AT&T loss, Bluegrass 911 records show.

Bluegrass 911 does get about 38 cents per month from every cell phone in its coverage area. The state collects 70 cents per cell phone and then divvies that money up to 911 call centers, but not before percentages are taken out for administration and the cell phone companies.

Clark said cell phone use is "pretty much ... at a standstill" and Bluegrass 911 can't cover landline losses with cell phone growth anymore.

The switch from landlines to water meters includes a reduction of 50 cents in the per-unit charge, but because there are currently about 5,000 more water meters than landlines in Lincoln and Garrard, Bluegrass 911 will actually see its total income rise.

After taking out the percentage of the new charge that water associations and providers will keep as an administrative fee, Clark thinks the center will see an increase in revenue of about $30,000 per year, bringing funding back up to where it was in 2006.

"I think it will be enough with some other cost-saving measures that we've got in place," he said. "I think that it will be adequate funding."

No pleasant alternatives

Clark said one alternative to switching to water meters would be to increase the per-unit charge on landlines.

But that would unfairly burden a minority of the population with a majority of the costs for 911 service, he said.

Currently, Bluegrass 911 gets about 70 percent of its income from landline telephones, but only about 30 percent of its approximately 50,000 annual 911 calls come from landlines.

"Most people who have a landline phone are living on fixed income," Clark said. "They're elderly or at least over the age of 40."

It's also been suggested during 911 funding discussions that without a change to water meters, Lincoln and Garrard counties may have to start putting money into Bluegrass 911 directly from their general funds.

Clark said prior to the formation of Bluegrass 911, 911 service was costing Lincoln County about $150,000 per year out of its general fund, on top of income from landlines and cell phones.

Garrard County and Lancaster were each paying about $48,000 per year to cover their 911 costs, he said.

The creation of Bluegrass 911 in 2007 allowed the two counties to consolidate their 911 services into a single call center funded solely by income from landlines and cell phones.

Since then, neither county has had to pay anything out of their general funds, Clark said.

That means Bluegrass 911 has possibly saved the counties as much as $1.2 million in 911 expenses over its lifetime.

Back in front of the myriad computer screens on Friday, Dowell filled out a call report and juggled the four computer mice on her desk while Combs handled an apparent prank call coming from a child.

"If you don't know how to multitask, then this job's not for you," Combs said.

Combs said talking to children on their level is important because they're often scared or intimidated to be talking to 911.

That's one reason she volunteers to visit area schools and educate kids about what she does as a 911 dispatcher.

"As a 911 system, we try to take care of the people as well as the community," she said.

Stanford man charged in home invasion wants to change plea

By Todd Kleffman
tkleffman@schurz.com

DANVILLE — Last month, Stanford resident Michael W. Durham avoided trial when he entered a guilty plea in the 2010 home invasion robbery of a Junction City couple in exchange for a recommended sentence of 11 years in prison.

On July 10, when Boyle Circuit Judge Darren Peckler was set to formally sentence him to those 11 years, Durham changed his mind again. He told Peckler he wanted to fire his lawyer, withdraw his guilty plea and take the case to trial acting as his own attorney.

Peckler said he will hold two hearings on July 19, one to determine if Durham can legally withdraw his guilty plea and the other to decide if he can act as his own attorney if the case goes forward.

Durham, 26, is charged with two counts of first-degree robbery and one count of first-degree burglary for allegedly breaking into the home of Warren and Mary Bigger. Warren Bigger was pistol whipped, and Mary Bigger was threatened with a gun during the robbery, where old coins, jewelry, cash and a laptop computer were taken.

Durham's cousin, Shawn Durham, pleaded guilty to the same charges in March and received an 11-year prison sentence. Michael Durham was offered the same deal at the time but turned it down, and a trial was set for June 19. In April, Michael Durham was indicted on three counts of being a persistent felonly offender, upping the prison time he could receive if he was found guilty at trial.

Michael Durham reconsidered before the trial began and pleaded guilty in exchange for the 11-year sentence, only to change his mind again on Tuesday.

"I made it clear to him that I strongly advise him not to do what he is asking the court to do," Bill Noelker, Durham's former attorney, said after Tuesday's hearing.

If Durham is convicted of the robbery and burglary charges, along with being a persistent felony offender, he faces a prison sentence between 20 and 40 years. Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney Lynne Coleman suggested Durham should have stuck with the deal he had instead of asking to represent himself at trial.

"It would be a huge mistake for him to do so," Coleman said afterward.

Murder suspect wears bulletproof vest to arraignment in Danville

Man accused of shooting two men at close range

By Todd Kleffman
tkleffman@schurz.com

The man accused of murdering Waynesburg resident Mark Snyder was arraigned July 10 in Boyle Circuit Court.

Thomas Hager Jr. was assigned two public defenders and pleaded not guilty to two counts of murder in the May shooting deaths of two men, including Snyder, inside a Danville home.

Judge Darren Peckler ordered Hager to continue to be held without bond and scheduled a status hearing in the case for Aug. 7.

Assigned to defend Hager in what could be a death-penalty case were Aaron Currin with the Capital Trials Branch of the Lexington Public Defender's Office and Ernie Lewis, former executive director of the state Department of Public Advocacy.

Last month, a Boyle County grand jury indicted Hager on two counts of murder, first-degree assault and tampering with evidence in connection with the May 21 shootings that left Snyder, 21, and Ted Sparks, 54, of Danville, dead, and Phillip White, 37, of Lancaster, seriously injured.

The four men came together at Sparks' home at 477 High St. Sparks and Snyder were shot at close range, and White was hit as he was trying to flee the scene. Police have called the shootings drug related but provided few other details.

As with previous court appearances, Hager was wearing a bullet-proof vest Tuesday for his arraignment, rare protection for an inmate. Boyle Deputy Sheriff Dustin Clem said the vest was "just a precautionary measure," declining to say if Hager had received any threats.

Runners, walkers brave heat for Run for Independence

AS IF HAVING the heat of the sun at your back and an uphill course ahead wasn't enough, Run for Independence competitors also had to deal with a little road construction along the race route. Above, the runners and walkers have to stride carefully early in the race, with gravel from recent repairs covering Stanford's Main Street at the starting line.

Gander gets first 5K win, Ellsworth collects her second in ninth annual Stanford race

By Nancy Leedy
A field of 45 runners and walkers braved the heat Saturday morning, crowding onto Stanford's Main Street bright and early as they prepared for the 8 a.m. starters' horn on the ninth annual 5K Run for Independence.
A small crowd also turned out to support the runners and walkers, cheering and applauding each one as they neared the finish line.
The first to hear the quiet roar of the small crowd was Chase Gander, 29, of Hustonville, who was running in his first Run for Independence — and only his fourth 5K.
"I've been running about three weeks," Gander said. "A bunch of the guys I was working out with, they were running on weekends, 5Ks. So I just started running with them some in the week and practicing, and they talked me into running some 5Ks. I've enjoyed it since."
Gander, who completed the 5K course in a time of 21:31, said the Stanford course was challenging.
"The hills. It's half hills at least," he said.
The race started in front of Willy's Overland Garage on Main Street and was a constant uphill run along Danville Avenue and into Oakwood Estates. The course did take a downturn in Oakwood but another steep grade followed. As runners came out of Oakwood, they got another downhill onto Herndon Avenue. There were a couple more slight grades before they turned onto Lancaster Street, and then it was downhill and flat over the remainder of the course.

"This course is probably the hardest I've run," said Gander. "Harrodsburg was pretty hard, Millennium (Park) was easy and there was one more, but this one was the hardest out of the four I've run. It seemed like you were always running up."
It didn't help that Gander wasn't feeling well before the race.
"I didn't really feel too good because we'd worked a bunch of storm work at Inter-County," he said. "I worked all night Thursday night. I've slept since Friday morning at 11 when they let me go home. I just woke up to come here so I didn't feel too good. Once I started to run I started to feel better."

STANFORD 5K

From B1

Grigson, 26, also of Stanford, finished right behind Gander, with Poynter just eight seconds back in second place with a time of 21:39 and Grigson running third in 22:29.

Gander wasn't at all surprised at who followed him across at the finish.

"David Grigson was running well. I ran behind him probably two miles, but I think the hill got to him at Calvin Denham's house (Oakwood Estates) and I passed him," he said. "And Justin hit nitrous about two miles in and he passed a bunch of runners."

Gander waited at the finish as the rest of the 5K runners and walkers completed the race, waiting to cheer in his wife Brooke Gander, who walked the course pushing their four-month-old son Gabriel in a stroller, and mother-in-law Shirley Howard. The two brought up the end of the race, finishing together in 45:49.

Both of the top trophies in the 5K run went to local runners with Jenna Ellsworth, 25, of Stanford following Gander across in sixth place to capture first place in the women's division. Ellsworth's time for the run, 24:22.

Ellsworth, who won her first 5K a few weeks ago in Harrodsburg, said Saturday's Run for Independence was a hard run.

"It was a good race, but it was really hot. Really, really hot. I knew it would be," Ellsworth said. "I don't like the heat. I've slowed down running a lot where it's been really warm so I knew it would be hard today."

But Ellsworth still had fun.

"It's tough but I really like the course," she said. "It's really hilly but you're not running the same place twice as much as some of the other courses. There are just no breaks."

However, while the heat and hills loomed, Ellsworth's biggest concern entering the Run for Independence was not the conditions or course but on how to pace herself.

"I usually pace myself with my uncle Todd (Kirkpatrick) but he is in El Salvador on a mission trip so I was really worried that I wouldn't have somebody to run with, and I would either start too fast or too slow," she said. "But it ended up being okay. I ran with Kelly Deatherage (Grigson) for the first half of the race so that was a good pacer."

"It's nice to have a pacer. It helps a lot, especially when you're going up a hill and you want to slow down."

There was no room for Ellsworth to slow her pace during the race, with just seven seconds separating her from the second-place female runner, Lori Catron. Catron, 46, crossed in eighth place overall in a time of 24:29.

Leo McMillen was not the fastest competitor in Saturday's race but he did hold the honor of being the course elder at age 77. He came in 43rd overall in a time of 43:22.

There were no pre-teen competitors in this year's Run for Independence, with Kaytlyn Bryant, 15, the youngster of the field. She placed 33rd overall in a time of 33:11.

The order of finish, runner's name, age and time follow:

FARM FACTS

By Dan Grigson
Lincoln County Extension Office

Forage management update

Conditions have improved over the last 10 days, but most of Kentucky remains in moderate drought. July and August are challenging months even during a good year. Cool season grasses, like fescue, orchard grass, and bluegrass, are largely unproductive during the summer. That's why we always encourage you to add legumes to your pastures as they keep growing and producing feed for your livestock in the summer.

Even though we are getting rain now, we will not get enough growth over the next six weeks to keep up with the needs of our livestock. Most farmers are going to be feeding something to help get through the rest of the summer. Many have started feeding hay, while others are scrambling to buy hay and several are looking to buy corn silage or baleage. Be sure to check the corn for nitrates as that can be a problem in drought years.

While the prices paid for hay are all over the board, we will hear some crazy numbers for purchased hay as we go through the summer. Let's say that hay is purchased for $185 per ton and a cow consumes 20 lbs. per day. That would be a daily cost of $1.86 per day ignoring storage and feeding losses. That should get your attention! If you are going to buy hay, you better do so now because the price is going to go higher.

Our advice is simple. Meet the nutritional needs of your cow herd as cheap as possible. It doesn't matter if you are feeding your own or purchasing hay or other feeds, choose the option that makes the most economic sense. In a year like this, hay is just another potential feed. Don't buy hay just because that is what you are used to feeding your cows. Compare it with other potential concentrate and commodity feeds and corn silage, corn baleage, soybean baleage, etc.

Also, don't be fooled by the cost per hundred-weight of feeds. What really matters is the cost per nutrient. That's why we like to put things on a cost per day basis. We don't care what soy hulls and corn gluten cost per ton. If we can help meet your cows daily nutritional needs cheaper with them than with hay, we'll recommend you feed the commodities.

Finally, while scrambling to get cows through the summer, start thinking about fall and winter. If weather improves this fall, fescue will start growing again from mid-September through November. If there was ever a year to make good use of this growth, this is it! Any fescue that can be stockpiled to extend the grazing season will save money this winter.

Farmers should also think about whether they want to make a fall hay cutting. Fescue accumulates very well and maintains good quality into the winter. It might make more sense to strip graze that hay field this fall, rather than bale, store and feed it this winter. The quality of the grazed forage is also likely to be better than the hay quality.

You may also consider early weaning to reduce the cow's nutritional needs and feeding hay to dry cows now. This would delay grazing fall stockpiled fescue until later in the winter. Most grass hay will meet the needs of a dry cow in early to mid-gestation while stockpiled fescue will hold its quality late into the winter.

If dry cows are fed in a drylot or sacrifice paddock, nearly the whole farm can be allowed to recover from the drought and accumulate growth for the winter. That is something to consider for many of you.

All of you should at least graze your grass hay fields up until August 10-15. At this time you should pull the cattle off of those fields and put on 200 pounds of Ammonia Nitrate per acre, if there is good moisture. Keep the cattle off those fields until December and then strip graze. You will have good feed and really reduce your need for hay.

If you have more questions on drought issues, forage management and getting livestock through the winter, then give me a call at 365-2447.

FSA accepting nominations for County Committee election

The Stanford FSA Service will be accepting nominating petitions until August 1, 2012 for the upcoming FSA County Committee Election. County Committee members are crucial to FSA operations and are responsible for establishing policy and overall management of each FSA office.

The committee consists of five members representing particular areas in Lincoln and Garrard Counties. This year's election will be held in Local Administrative Area (LAA) 2 which is farmland in Lincoln County that is South of Highway 78 and West of Highway 27 consisting of Boneyville, Geneva, Highland, Kings Mountain, McKinney, New Salem, Mount Salem, South Fork, Eubank and parts of Hustonville and Waynesburg. This area is currently represented by Joy Vanhook.

Participation from minority groups, female organizations and other underrepresented groups is encouraged.

Nominations need to be filed by an eligible voter on a petition (FSA-669) which can be obtained at the service center. Petitions are limited to one nominee, signed by the nominee indicating willingness to serve and must be postmarked or delivered to the Stanford FSA Service Center no later than close of business August 1, 2012.

Persons nominated should be currently engaged in the operation of a farm, live in the election area and be qualified for committee work.

Additional information can be obtained by contacting the service center at (606) 365-2588.

Producers urged to take steps from potential losses

Agriculture Commissioner James Comer expressed grave concerns for Kentucky's livestock producers and corn growers and cautioned them to take steps to protect themselves from potential losses. Comer said that drought-stricken corn silage could contain toxic levels of nitrogen. If fed to livestock, this corn silage could be fatal.

"I am not going to sugarcoat the severity of this situation," said Commissioner Comer, who raises beef cattle on his farm in Monroe County. "I am very concerned for all our producers and their families."

The Kentucky field office of the National Agricultural Statistics Service reported that, as of Sunday, 72 percent of Kentucky's corn crop and 76 percent of the Commonwealth's pastures were rated poor or very poor. Commissioner Comer said some corn stalks aren't producing ears, which has led many growers, especially those in western Kentucky, to consider chopping their corn into silage to salvage some value.

"Feeding silage can help livestock producers who need to feed their animals because their pastures are suffering from the dry weather," Commissioner Comer said. "But producers should be careful about feeding corn silage until they have determined that the nitrogen content is at an acceptable level."

The University of Kentucky Agricultural Weather Center stated Monday that western Kentucky and the bluegrass region are in extreme hydrological drought while central and eastern Kentucky are in severe drought. Western Kentucky would need more than 16 inches of rain to end the drought, according to UK.

Because it does not appear that this drought will abate anytime soon, Commissioner Comer urged farmers who have federal crop insurance to check in with their adjusters before making any major decisions.

Commissioner Comer has communicated with the governor's office regarding the possibility of a declaration of emergency in counties across the Commonwealth.

Old-Fashioned Days service

LIFT EVERY VOICE. Ruth Gassett and Ollie Raglin, front, and Christine Reid and Mary Reid, in back, lift their voices in song dressed in their finest "old" clothes during First Missionary Baptist Church's Old-Fashioned Days service Sunday morning in Stanford. Members and visitors were asked, but not required to wear old-fashioned clothes for the service but these four women were among the dozen or so who dressed for the occasion. Raglin is the wife of First Missionary pastor, Rev. Floyd Raglin, and Gassett is the wife of Rev. Lawrence Gassett of First Baptist Church of Davistown in Garrard County.

OLD-FASHIONED PREACHING. Rev. Lawrence Gassett, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Davistown in Garrard County, was the guest preacher for First Missionary Baptist Church's Old-Fashioned Days service Sunday in Stanford. First Missionary pastor Floyd Raglin said he choice Gassett for the occasion because he was the most "old-fashioned" preacher, at least in his ways, than any other preacher he knew.

AT RIGHT: CHURCH READY. Bobby Wilkinson dressed the part for Old-Fashioned Day wearing bibbed overalls and a straw hat to Sunday service.

FIRST MISSIONARY BAPTIST served up a hearty meal following Old-Fashioned Day services. In honor of the old-fashioned theme, paper plates, disposable cups and plasticware were replaced with china, crystal and silver flatware.
